Saint Stephen Confessor, King Of Hungary
975-1038

...To plant Christianity firmly in his kingdom and provide for its continued growth after his death, King Stephen filled Hungary with religious foundations. At Székesfehérvár (Stuhlweissenburg) he built a stately church in honor of the Mother of God, in which the kings of Hungary were afterwards crowned and buried.

In Buda he founded the monastery of SS. Peter and Paul, and in Rome, Ravenna, and Constantinople hospices for pilgrims. He filled Pannonhalma (Martinsberg) with Benedictines, who, as we have seen, were notable for practical works and founded four other monasteries of the order, as well as convents for nuns. At Veszprem there was a convent for nuns of the Byzantine rite. One effect of the conversion of Hungary was that the road used by pilgrims and crusaders going to the Holy Land was made safer, since the valley of the Danube formed a natural highway for at least a part of the long, difficult journey. To support churches and pastors and to relieve the poor, Stephen started the collection of tithes, and every tenth town was required to maintain a church and support a priest. Stephen himself built the churches and the bishops appointed the priests. He passed edicts for the severe punishment of blasphemy, murder, theft, and adultery. He commanded his subjects to marry, with the exception of monks, nuns, and clergy; he forbade marriages between Christians and pagans. Easy of access to persons of all ranks, Stephen was always ready to listen to the complaints of the poor, knowing that in helping them he honored Christ. Widows and orphans he took under his special protection... (EWTN Global Catholic Television Network's online library)

Reflections On The Pope's Universal Intention – Refugees

The civil war in Syria has been called the greatest humanitarian crisis of our time. From a population of about 22 million, 9 million are refugees: 6.5 million people are displaced within Syria and 2.5 million in neighboring countries. In Lebanon, 1 in 5 people is a Syrian refugee; in Jordan, 1 in 11.

People are fleeing from violence in other places as well. Along with Syria, Afghanistan, Somalia, Iraq, and Sudan accounted for 55 percent of all refugees in 2012. Half of these people were under the age of 18.

Each one of these many millions of refugees is a person with a story, hopes, and dreams. Pope Francis wrote in his Message for the 2014 World Day of Migrants and Refugees: "Every human being is a child of God! He or she bears the image of Christ! We ourselves need to see, and then to enable others to see, that migrants and refugees do not only represent a problem to be solved, but are brothers and sisters to be welcomed, respected, and loved."

Seventy-five year old Dutch Jesuit Father Frans van der Lugt spent 50 years in Homs, Syria. In solidarity with the people he had served for so long, he refused to leave that war-torn country. On April 7 of this year he was beaten, shot, and killed.

As we wait in hope for an end to the conflicts that create refugees, we join Pope Francis in praying this month that refugees may find safety and protection in those places to which they have fled.
